Professional experience

October 1998 –to date John Wright Modelmaking, Bristol.

John Wright Modelmaking is a small specialist model making company in Bristol. The company is involved in the design and fabrication of models, sets, mechanisms and armatures for films, advertising and TV series, and works closely with Aardman Animation and other major UK animation companies.

I am involved fully from the concept and design stage through to building a prototype and making any necessary revisions. I can either work from concept sketches or detailed plans or liaise directly with clients and be responsible for the initial design and for agreeing and implementing modifications or improvements to ensure that their brief is fully met.

I have complete freedom to decide the most appropriate model making techniques and working methods to achieve clients' design objectives. When a new enquiry is received I would typically work closely with John Wright, discussing with him on alternative methods of manufacture and the time and cost implications of each. Once awarded a contract I would be responsible for much of the detailed liaison with the client on the details of the contract, the timing of deliveries, any modifications or problems and overall quality control.

I am responsible to John Wright for ensuring that all products meet the most exacting standards of excellence, and for making sure that production meets delivery deadlines.

The following list shows the main projects I have been involved in, as modelmaker or designer, while working at John Wright Modelmaking.
